SPEAKERS

Helen Stevens RN RM MCHN

Helen is the author of Safe Sleep Space; A gently loving approach for helping infants and children find sleep (2009 3rd.), the founder of Early Parent & Infant Consultants home visiting service, and together with colleague Cindy Davenport, co-producer of the 2009 Safe Sleep Space DVD. Since 2009 Helen and Cindy have been providing information and resources to a range of early parenting professionals and families. The need for response based services for sleep disturbed infants and toddlers has resulted in the growth of the of home visits, day-stay programs and numerous teaching opportunities across Australia.

Helen is a member of both the World and Australian Associations of Infant Mental Health and with the knowledge gained from IMH, she provides information to professionals and parents that underpin this response based approach to care of infants and toddlers who struggle with sleep.

Dr Anne Sved Williams (Sydney/Adelaide program)

Dr Anne Sved Williams is a perinatal and infant psychiatrist and for 24 years has been the medical unit head of Helen Mayo House, the mother-infant public inpatient unit in Adelaide. She is a clinical senior lecturer at the University of Adelaide. Anne began her professional life as a GP and has a particular interest in teaching at the primary care level. She is co-editor with Vicki Cowling of Infants of Parents with Mental Illness: Developmental, Clinical, Cultural and Personal Perspectives.

A/A Prof Caroline Zanetti (Perth program)

A/A Prof Caroline Zanetti is a perinatal, child and infant Psychiatrist at Notre Dame University, Fremantle. She has led St John of God Subiaco, Raphael Centre as Director of Psychiatry since it's foundation in 2003. Her focus has been on the infant-parent relationship, and on working psychotherapeutically with parents in a way that includes reflection on attachment relationships.

She is also an accredited Circle of Security Supervisor, and has considerable expertise in this model. Her research interest is on the transition to parenthood. Other interests include developing innovative programs for engaging hard-to-reach groups within the field of perinatal and infant mental health.

Dr Carol Newnham

Dr Carol Newnham is a Neuropsychologist who works with both the Parent-Infant Research Institute which develops evidence-based interventions for mothers and infants and the Victorian Infant Brain Studies group, which focuses primarily on relationships between neural and functional development in at-risk infants. Dr Newnham's research studies have involved assessing an intervention delivered to mothers of hospitalised pre-term infants in terms of its effect on infant development. The latest focus of Dr Newnham's research interest has been the effect of stress on infant brain development. She recently developed a measure of accumulated stress in hospitalised pre-term infants. In addition to research work, Dr Newnham publishes a quarterly magazine for parents of pre-term infants known as 'Premiepress', now in its eleventh year, which presents recent and pertinent research results, theories and interventions from different disciplines for parents and professionals.

Dr Birgit Beisner

Dr Birgit Beisner has a PhD from the University Melbourne, which focussed on identifying the cellular receptor for rotavirus. Following her PhD, she worked in an Research and Development role for animal vaccines, mostly on experiments to ensure quality of the viral and cellular components of the vaccines. In 2002, she took on a regulatory affairs role, before transitioning to the medical department of GSK in 2003. Since then she has supported many paediatric vaccines listed on the National Immunisation Program, via medical/scientific input for various projects including regulatory, health outcomes, and tender submissions. Her current role is the Southern Region National Immunisation Program Manager.
